

February 2005 Luncheon

Our February luncheon speaker was Ryan Gravel from Friends of the Beltline. Ryan attended Georgia Tech where he earned a Master of Architecture and Master of City Planning in 1999. Ryan spoke about the Beltline project which was his thesis project at Georgia Tech. Ryan envisioned the re-use of some under-utilized freight railroads that circle Atlanta's central city as the Beltline which is a 22 mile transit greenway that includes a linear park with cars, bicycles, and pedestrian paths connecting over 40 neighborhoods. For more information on "What You Missed" visit their website at www.beltline.org.