

John Meckley

Starting his professional career as a US Naval Aviator, John Meckley currently serves as EY's Regional Director of Administration with responsibility for the firm's locations in the Southeast and 6 Caribbean offices. After leaving the Navy, John relocated to Atlanta and joined the Atlanta City Council as a member of the public relations team. In 1992, he then took a role as the media relations director for Prudential Healthcare in the Southeast. After leaving PruCare in 1995, John spent the next four years as a business consultant, finally arriving at EY in 1999 where he started as a technology consultant.

In 2003, John took the role of EY's Atlanta location manager and assistant regional director of administration before taking on his current role in 2005. In his role, he works most closely with EY's global real estate team, having helped with numerous office builds, redesigns, and moves. Of note, in 2007, John served as the administrative lead for EY's Atlanta office move to their current 55 Ivan Allen Jr. Boulevard location, helping move approximately 1200 people in 1.5 days.

John lives in Kennesaw, GA with his wife Stephanie and is the father of two daughters and a son (Julia, 17; Jake, 14; and Sophia Grace, 10). In his spare time, John trains for and competes in triathlons, is a Boy Scout Troop assistant scoutmaster, and serves as a lacrosse goalie coach.